CHICAGO SKY BASKETBALL
STREAK SNAPPED
After starting out the season 3-0 at home, the Sky fell to the visiting Indiana Fever 69-76 in a contest not decided until the closing minutes. Erica Wheeler scored a new season-high 28 points and Candice Dupree picked up her third double-double of the season with 14 points and 10 rebounds for the Fever. The Sky were held to a season-low 25 rebounds in the contest, and look to total more against the second-ranked rebounding team, the Connecticut Sun.

THE WEEK AHEAD
After starting the 2019 season with a disappointing 1-2 record, the Chicago Sky are now in the midst of an impressive four-game winning streak and will look to extend it on Friday night with a rematch against the Indiana Fever. Following Friday night’s contest, the Sky have less than 48 hours to prepare for a Sunday evening showdown against the Connecticut Sun. The Sky will then close out their home stand with a Wednesday morning tilt against the Washington Mystics before heading west for a three-game road trip.

FAMILIAR FOE
Just six days removed from the Sky’s 70-64 victory on the road against the Indiana Fever, the two rivals will face off once again on Friday night, this time in the friendlier confines of Wintrust Arena. Allie Quigley led all players with 18 points, including four made three-point shots, and Courtney Vandersloot notched eight assists as she continued her masterclass in putting players in positions to score. Cheyenne Parker also made her presence felt on the glass, collecting 10 or more rebounds for a third time on the young season.

STRONG STARTS
As the first quarter of the 2019 WNBA season comes to a close, the Chicago Sky see themselves in sole possession of second place in the league-wide standings. In addition to their impressive start as a team, many individual players have made strong cases for All-Star Game consideration - Courtney Vandersloot leads the WNBA in assists with an astounding eight per game, Diamond DeShields currently ranks in the top 20 for points per game with 13.7, and Allie Quigley is tied for the second-best 3PT shooting percentage in the WNBA at an even 50%.

WELCOME COACH WADE
James Wade joins the Chicago Sky as General Manager and Head Coach after spending two seasons as an assistant coach with the Minnesota Lynx under head coach Cheryl Reeve, helping guide the team to a 2017 WNBA Championship title. Wade spent the 2013 WNBA offseason in Russia as an advance scout for UMMC Ekaterinburg, which won the FIBA EuroLeague Women championship that same year. The team won again in 2018 and 2019. Along with Wade, Assistant Coach Carla D. Morrow, Assistant Coach Bridget Pettis, Strength and Conditioning Coach / Operations Director Ann Crosby, and Player Development Coach Emre Vatansever will be the coaching staff for the Sky this season.
